SCAA - Administrative forms and guidance documents

2. Methodological considerations The methodology used for the statistical analysis follows internationally accepted standards, guidelines, or good practices.	2.1 Concepts and definitions Concepts and definitions used are in accord with internationally accepted statistical frameworks. 2.2 Scope —The scope is in accord with internationally accepted standards, guidelines, or good practices. 2.3 Classification —Classification and categorization systems used are in accord with internationally accepted standards, guidelines, or good practices. 2.4 Basis for recording —Flows and stocks are valid and recorded according to internationally accepted standards, guidelines, or good practices.	2.1.1 The overall structure in terms of concepts and definitions follows internationally accepted standards, guidelines, or good practices. 2.2.1 The scope is broadly consistent with internationally accepted standards, guidelines, or good practices. 2.3.1 Classification/categorization systems used are broadly consistent with internationally accepted standards, guidelines, or good practices. 2.4.1 Market prices are used to value flows and stocks. 2.4.2 Recording is done on an accrual basis. 2.4.3 Estimating/testing procedures are broadly consistent with internationally accepted standards, guidelines, or good practices.
3. Accuracy and reliability Source data and statistical techniques are used and statistical output sufficiently presents reality.	3.1 Source data —Source data availability provides an adequate basis to compile statistics. 3.2 Assessment of source data —Source data are regularly assessed. 3.3 Statistical techniques —Statistical techniques employed conform to sound statistical procedures. 3.4 Assessment and validation of intermediate data and statistical outputs —Intermediate results and statistical outputs are regularly assessed and validated. 3.5 Review studies —Reviews, or a group of reviews, are carried out periodically to assess the reliability of the information they provide.	3.1.1 Source data are obtained from comprehensive data collection programs that take into account country-specific conditions. 3.1.2 Source data reasonably approximate the definitions, scope, classifications, valuation, and time of recording required. 3.1.3 Source data are timely. 3.2.1 Source data—existing censuses, sample surveys, and administrative records—are routinely assessed, e.g., for coverage, sample error, response error, and nonresponse error; the results of the assessment are monitored and made available to guide statistical processes. 3.2.2 Data compliance: empirical sound statistical techniques to deal with data sources. 3.2.3 Other statistical procedures (e.g., data adjustment, imputation, and statistical analysis) employ sound statistical techniques. 3.4.1 Intermediate results are validated against other information where applicable. 3.4.2 Statistical discrepancies in intermediate data are assessed and investigated. 3.4.3 Statistical discrepancies and other potential indicators or problems in statistical outputs are investigated. 3.5.1 Studies and analyses of reviews are carried out routinely and used internally to refine statistical processes (see also 4.3.3).
