In Another Place, Not Here: Writing Exotic Locales

I see Verl coming, like a shower of rain. I went in the evenings after work to the sand quarry while he sleep.

She Skin Black as Water: The Movement of Liquid Imagery in Dionne Brand's In Another Place, Not Here

The prose is lyrical and forced me to slow down—I'm a skimmer, unfortunately—and for that I liked it. Este artículo analiza y evalúa la manera en que dos autoras formulan y desarrollan un equilibrio entre la conciencia subjetiva y la social en dos novelas norteamericanas: Jazz, de Toni Morrison, y In Another Place, Not Here, de Dionea Brand. If she could just recognize something it would be all right.
