Coalition Formation

The members of the coalition also used it to refine and improve their cooperation and collaboration with one another in all their work, resulting over the long term, in better services across the board in the county. This combined application not only leads to new theories but also offers a new and fresh perspective on coalition formation and collective decision-making in committees. Bringing together groups and individuals from many sectors of the community can create alliances where there was little contact before.

Kingmakers and leaders in coalition formation, Social Choice and Welfare

Sometimes, such groups are diverse and are characterized by some degree of commonalities. In addition, the degree of preference for a first choice may be far greater among some voters than others. There is such a broad range of possibilities here - from practically no governance to a very clear, formal hierarchy - that it's crucial that the group that everyone can live with.

Coalition Formation Theory

A state  $a$  is an ENF state if it is efficient and negative externality free. You can help correct errors and omissions. If that leadership isn't available and can't be developed from within the coalition, its existence is probably at risk.

Coalition Formation and Social Choice

In general, the broader the membership of any coalition, the better, but there are certain people and groups whose representation on a coalition is absolutely essential.

Kingmakers and leaders in coalition formation, Social Choice and Welfare

Elections that allow minorities to attain power may be expected to increase the likelihood of societal conflict.

Coalition Theory and Government Formation

Also in the Cambridge Dictionary: the union of different political parties or groups for a particular purpose, usually for a limited time.

Kingmakers and leaders in coalition formation

The Spirit of the Coalition. After the state passed welfare reform legislation, an already economically depressed rural county found itself faced with the prospect of finding permanent jobs for a large number of welfare recipients within the next two years.
