From these dispositions in philosophers and their disciples arises that mutual complaisance betwixt them; while the former furnish such plenty of strange and unaccountable opinions, and the latter so readily believe them. I've two postcards of the Soudan which was a hospital ship at Gallipoli. After a little more practice of this kind, we begin to distinguish the figure from the colour by a distinction of reason; that is, we consider the figure and colour together, since they are in effect the same and undistinguishable; but still view them in different aspects, according to the resemblances, of which they are susceptible.

1962 in poetry

Contiguity and succession are not sufficient to make us pronounce any two objects to be cause and effect, unless we perceive, that these two relations are preserved in several instances. Thus in sleep, in a fever, in madness, or in any very violent emotions of soul, our ideas may approach to our impressions, As on the other hand it sometimes happens, that our impressions are so faint and low, that we cannot distinguish them from our ideas.

If mountans rose on wings to wander They were no wilder than a cloud ; Yet all my praise is mean as slander, Mean as these mean words spoken aloud. The word raises up an individual idea, along with a certain custom; and that custom produces any other individual one, for which we may have occasion. Hunger is hard and time is tough, But bless the beggars and kiss the kings ; For hope has broken the heart of things, And nothing was ever praised enough.
