Most of the remaining Covenanters, disagreeing with the Restoration Settlement on various political and theological grounds, most notably because the Settlement did not acknowledge the National Covenant and Solemn League and Covenant, also did not join the Church of Scotland, instead forming the in 1690.

Women bishops in the Scottish Episcopal Church

The usual pattern for joining the Church of Scotland is that infant children of Church members are received into the Church through Baptism. Yet still the two Marys hurry from the tomb to tell others, hurry right into the eye of other storms — of opposition, ridicule and scorn. In 2014, 204 women were serving ministers in the Church of Scotland within Scotland, representing 25.

Women's History Scotland

This returned power to landowners and town councils to nominate ministers to vacant parishes, thereby removing the right of call from congregations. Pope Gelasius 1 wrote a letter condemning the presence of women in the celebration of the Eucharist. In 1378 the Catholic Church found itself divided with rival popes in Rome and Avignon.
