Collection Development Policy

Library materials are not marked or identified to show approval or disapproval of the contents, nor are materials sequestered except for the purpose of protecting them from damage or theft. In addition, all materials to be withdrawn will ultimately need to be handled by the Technical Services Department. If the cost is reasonable, materials requested for long-term office use are purchased and cataloged for the library collection and checked out to the faculty member interested in the title.

General

PART III: Collections Reserve and Reference Desk Collections The law libraries will add certain types of print materials to the permanent reserves collection, e. CCS Libraries are committed to developing library collections in both print and electronic formats.

Collection Development Policies & Procedures

Content Duplication Due to space and budget limitations, CCS Libraries do not typically purchase or accept donations of duplicate copies of print titles in the collection. The same principles of selection and assessment will apply to these materials as to all other Library collection materials. This collection of selected copyright policies, covering a range of print and digital resources, will assist library and campus personnel with their own work.

Materials are also selected to ensure that the collection as a whole contains materials on many different topics, that there is a choice of materials or formats on the subject, and that multiple viewpoints are expressed. Faculty members in all disciplines are encouraged to take an active role in recommending library materials, working through either their departmental library agent or their library faculty liaison. These materials are temporarily housed in the reserve collection to support the direct needs of course instruction.
