Title: Downward to the Earth

It was one to two Silverberg novels that were Hugo short-listed in 1971 but Robert Silverberg withdrew it from the final ballot lest it draw votes away from his Tower of Glass: back then the Hugo voting by Worldcon registrants was 'first past the post' and not sequential preferential counted in knock-out rounds the Australian system which slightly helps more popular secondary preferences compared to slightly less popular but overall majority first preferences. The encounter with his former lover, Seena, is awkward, but memories pop up again and it's like they never separated.
