Masaccio

Peter detail, Masaccio, Tribute Money, 1427, fresco Brancacci Chapel, Santa Maria del Carmine, Florence In the central, first scene, the tax collector points down with his right hand, and holds his left palm open, impatiently insisting on the money from Christ and the apostles. The hills and the mountains that rise out from the plains, dotted with farmhouses, trees and hedges, have an entirely new and earthy concreteness: a perfect use of linear perspective, which will be taken up by Paolo Uccello, Domenico Veneziano and Piero della Francesca. In the center of the fresco scene 1, we see the tax collector demanding the money, and Christ instructing Peter.

The Legacy of Masaccio Despite his short career, Masaccio proved himself to be one of the most important artists of the Early Renaissance. All of these frescoes are now lost. The former group includes the strongly rendered Madonna and Child with Four Angels, now in London's National Gallery, the central panel of the original altarpiece.
