Our commitment to helping users is also reflected in our education and training program, a carefully planned series of conferences and workshops to be held around the coun- try and abroad upon the release of this edition.

DDC

There is always some conflict between filing law matters under each subject separately using standard subdivision -026 the final option suggested under 342-347 , and bringing them to the Law discipline as described above. For an example of a complete revision note, see 570 Life sciences Biology; for an example of an extensive revision note, see 370 Education. An appendix reprints various statements on intellectual freedom by the American Library Association.

Comparison of Dewey and Library of Congress subject classification

The Edition 20 number for biology 574 was left vacant in the revision to aid library implementation of the new schedule, since samples of library holdings in the OCLC Online Union Catalog indicated that 70% of holdings among Dewey libraries on internal biological processes were in 574. Selected Revisions in the Tables Table 1.

If notation from Table 2 is not added, use 00 for standard subdivisions; see below for complete instructions on using standard subdivisions. Notation from Table 2 may be added if the number in Table 5 is limited to speakers of only one language even if the group discussed does not approximate the whole of the group specified by the Table 5 number, e. These numbers may be suitable for works that focus clearly on the science of climate. A note listing the heading associated with the class number in the previous edition.
