Between Fordism and Flexibility

One of the more notable trends among MSPs in the last few years has been the shift to redefining their businesses almost exclusively around security, creating the category known as managed security services providers MSSPs. They know how to adjust and what to do. Another stressor for IT pros as they consider the outlook for their role is the expectation of delivering larger results with a flat or shrinking budget, and the coming year will demand more innovation in building tech solutions to meet business goals.
