

New analysis of Kents Cavern, Devonshire, England. - By John B. Campbell and C. Garth Sampson.

University of Oregon [Dept. of Anthropology] - Library

Description: -

-

Torquay (England) -- Antiquities

Kents Cavern (Devonshire, England)new analysis of Kents Cavern, Devonshire, England. - By John B. Campbell and C. Garth Sampson.

-

University of Oregon Anthropological papers, no. 3new analysis of Kents Cavern, Devonshire, England. - By John B. Campbell and C.
Garth Sampson.

Notes: Bibliography: p. 37-40.

This edition was published in 1971

Filesize: 39.210 MB

Tags: #Library

Library

The Tamar is navigable for vessels of one hundred and thirty tons up to New Quay, about twenty-four miles above Plymouth. The native Devonshire hog grows to a large size, and is long in all its dimensions, but has been much improved by a cross with the Leicester breed, and a further cross with the Chinese, which have considerably reduced its size, and rendered it much more profitable. The principal exports are woollen goods, fish, corn, malt, cider, timber and bark, silver, copper, tin and lead ores, antimony from Cornwall, manganese, marble, granite, lime, pipe and potters' clay.

Library

Dartmouth was stormed and taken by Fairfax on the 18th, assisted by the co-operation of the fleet under Admiral BATTEN.

Kents Cavern

Of the land in cultivation, somewhat the greater portion is pasture land; in the South Hams, however, the arable predominates, in the proportion of at least three to one; and in the northern parts of Devon the grazing land prevails in about the same proportion.

Kents Cavern Cave Attraction

DEVONSHIRE, a maritime county, bounded on the north by the Bristol channel, on the east by the counties of Somerset and Dorset, on the south by the English channel, and on the west by Cornwall, extending from 50° 12' to 51° 17' N. The great road from London to Exeter and Plymouth enters the county between the ninth and tenth mile-stone from Bridport, and passes through Axminster, Honiton, Exeter, Ashburton, South Brent, and Plympton, to Plymouth; its course through the county being about seventy-seven miles.

Kents Cavern Cave Attraction

Of the many Roman stations, the only one, the situation of which has been fixed with certainty, is Isca Damnoniorum, near Exeter. In February, Sir

Nicholas SLANNING being intrenched at Modbury with two thousand men, was defeated by the Devonshire club-men.

Related Books

- Little traitor to the South - a war-time comedy, with a tragic interlude
- Our heroes heroes
- Infuły i szyszaki - opowieść o wielkim rodzie Górków
- España y la independencia de Estados Unidos
- Jabr o qadr - majmū'ah-yi maqālāt