Each of the elements has many variant applications that allow it to be used to defend against all of the elements including itself, so any set sequences are ultimately entirely arbitrary in real combat but present a frame work for developing a more practical skill, the destructive cycle is often taught to 'beginners' as it is generally easier to visualize and consists of easier applications. Schools of the branch emphasize Xing and Yi before developing a higher level of relaxed structure, and have a slightly different evasive footwork.
