An industry observer says the nearly decade-long family board tussle through the 2000s resulted in an overhang on the stock as investors tip-toed around the stock, anticipating a selldown by the Tan families. APM, Warisan TC and TCIL have since given out total dividends of RM204. But the siblings are seeking permission to appeal further to the Hong Kong's Final Court of Appeal, Mr Tan Cheng Gay told The Straits Times.

Tan Chong International's car business has led, in a roundabout way, to its first foray into food. TCM has come a long way from 1985 when its market share dropped from 30% to a mere 3% after national carmaker Proton came into the local automotive space. This is amidst the tough business environment in the automotive industry where companies producing national cars had for long an advantage over non-national car manufacturers.

Siblings appeal over key words in tycoon's will , Singapore News

The four children of a late Singapore tycoon unhappy with a Hong Kong court's interpretation of a key Chinese phrase in his will are seeking a further final appeal. However, the Tan families decided to settle their feud outside the courtroom. He has more than thirty 30 years of working experience in the accounting profession.
