CLOSE Lu Guangtong is a researcher and engineer of Digital Economy Lab, Department of Information Policy, China Industrial Control Systems Cyber Emergency Response Team. The non government organisation, Women's Centre for Health Matters, provides information and resources on women's health. Without such, the information needed to help set priorities and develop effective policies will remain limited.

The spectre of development looms over Gnaraloo and Red Bluff

Chapter four and five constituted the major contribution of this study focusing on the example of the sect's expansion in the Peninsula and its development during the last two decades. The use of anthropological techniques for information-gathering by local, literate people was also considered, an action for which there are precedents from early twentieth-century Africa. The principal function of the Board would be to agree on combined tasks to be undertaken by the agencies to deal effectively with the many critical issues of sustainable development that cut across agency and national boundaries.
