Mostly the Israeli position is that the confiscation against Jews in the middle east cancel the Palestinian claims out. It may get there, but still it wouldn't be apartheid.

Crossing the Border: An Autobiography of an Anti

Davis describes himself as a Palestinian Hebrew. According to Troy, part of the reason for the intensity of feelings against Israel is that pro-Palestinian advocates have explicitly tied the Palestinian cause to that of racial injustice in America, which has been a central theme and rallying point for the progressive Left and minority groups in the US for several years, but in particular since the killing of George Floyd in Minnesota last year. He lived there for the rest of his life.
