It really should be better known here in the UK and ought to be mandatory reading in any serious study of slavery and racism. I am free to say that, in your place, I should throw the MS. The children, the unconscious children, who once sang and danced in her presence, are gone.

Narrative of the Life of Frederick Douglass, an American Slave/Chapter 4

. But he, willing to justify himself, said unto Jesus, And who is my neighbour? Let us hear, then, what it is at its best estate--gaze on its bright side, if it has one; and then imagination may task her powers to add dark lines to the picture, as she travels southward to that for the colored man Valley of the Shadow of Death, where the Mississippi sweeps along. To give their escape some plausibility, Douglass forges written travel passes from a master.
