Interestingly, however, this graph also shows some notable examples of countries that expanded healthcare coverage much later, but much more quickly. However, most of the theorists were from the United States, and they were not interested in Third World countries achieving development by any model.

Third World Health: Hostage to First World Health

We can see that a hundred years ago, out of 100,000 child birth, between 500 and 1,000 ended with the death of the mother. The rate of increase has slowed down compared to the 1990s, but the absolute number is at the highest ever with more than 36 million people globally living with HIV.
