North Sentinel Island

The first recorded visit to the island by a colonial officer was by Jeremiah Homfray in 1867.

Sentinel Island, World's most inaccessible place!

The 1971 census estimated the population at around 82; the 1981 census at 100. Portman went into the island searching for Sentinelese the only known human to have made it passed the shores and into the island he found many deserted settlements full of shells, later they found a family of 6 and kidnapped them there were 2 adults and 4 children, he took them to the nearest major city all the natives soon fell sick and the adults died.

In 1996 the regular gift dropping missions stopped. Pandya argues that Sentinelese hostility is a sign of the physical as well as the cultural resilience of the community.

The Sentinelese Tribe: The Last Stone Age Humans On Earth?

The lifting of RAP means foreigners can go to the island without permission from the government, PTI reported. The government was also quite concerned about the possibility of harm to the Sentinelese by an influx of outsiders—a result of them projecting a relatively friendly image. Because the Sentinelese are the only surviving direct descendants of the first humans in Asia.
