European Union

The Eastern enlargement of the National elections bring in new majorities that are able to alter the rules, or even rescind them. Enlargement can only increase the traffic in both directions.

Benefits and Dangers of EU Enlargement

Given the uncertainty surrounding the quantitative potential of migration and commuting flows in the case of full liberalisation of labour market access between Austria and the CEE candidate countries, there is a case for maintaining some type of regulatory framework so that adjustment processes initiated by such liberalisation can be phased in over a certain time horizon. A recent survey by the Austrian Society for European Policy ÖGfE gives an insight how Austrians assess these developments.

EU's 'Mobility Package' will negatively impact citizens, climate and the economy

Most of them did so. What was in fact needed was greater solidarity through some form of mutualization of debt e.

Enlargement of the European Union

Despite sometimes spectacular efforts, whose economic cost is difficult to imagine for Western European citizens, and significant progress on a number of issues, much remains to be done in order to establish a solid financial system capable of facing competition on the European market and adopt quality, phytosanitary and environmental standards in the pursuit of restructuring the public sector and setting tight budget constraints. A Continent Moving West?: EU Enlargement and Labour Migration from Central and Eastern Europe on JSTOR

Spanish Foreign Affairs minister sent the request form to French Prime Minister. The author shows that when low-skilled workers are allowed to freely move between countries, there will be migration from low-wage countries to high-wage countries until the wages will equalize.

The Eastern enlargement of the European Union

What has made these new parties credible to large portions of the electorate is not only that they have engaged openly with difficult questions about the distribution costs of fiscal consolidation.

EU eastern enlargement, 10 years later

Even less is known about the possible effects of immigration from EaP countries. The export-induced additional output led to the creation of 56,000 new jobs in the whole economy.
