Goldstein -- So you want to be a top executive? You typed one up and each time you landed a new job, you added a new paragraph at the top of your resume to describe that new job. And if the worst happens and you're laid off, you'll have an address book filled with contacts to call--and remember, they'll likely pass along to you the names and numbers of everyone they know in the industry.

Shipman & Goodwin LLP Law Firm Profile

This is a change in mindset, but when veterans are exposed to the power of personal branding, they take control over their career and perform with more focus and satisfaction, thus making themselves more attractive to employers.

Why Veterans and Civilian Employers Have So Much Trouble Communicating

By working at the local level, you'll exponentially increase the size, power and reach of your personal network. What can you do to impress your future employer? Hiring managers are accustomed to this.

Why Veterans and Civilian Employers Have So Much Trouble Communicating

When a veteran is too vague in describing their goals, it makes it hard for hiring managers to see where they can add value to the company.

Job hunt: Tracking down your next job in mortgage banking could be a lot easier than the last time you took your updated resume to the printer. Lots of online tools have emerged to sleuth out the best industry job offerings. (Personnel).

Veterans are used to mentoring programs and will feel comfortable in the arrangement. Start sharpening your job-search spear now and you'll be ready when the next merger rolls around, when your boss leaves and is replaced by Mitchell Machiavelli, or when you're ready to reach for the next rung on the career ladder.
