Can I request a special care time? Nevertheless, most respondents 84% agreed that the benefits outweighed the concerns. This quick guide provides information about assessing cognitive impairment in older adults. Pre- and post- surveys comprised of validated scales were used to collect and compare data about quality of life, self-efficacy, healthcare utilization, and overall experience.

Given increasing interest in online patient health portals, this study examined public perceptions regarding the use of online patient health portals to access, manage, and share health information. And, most importantly, can we trust the integrity of the data, its source, and control of its access? The renal clinician team is excited for the patient portal and have been strong change agents supporting communications and change management activities.

Assessing Cognitive Impairment in Older Patients

Since presenting at eHealth 2018, we have improved data collection adding Fitbit Charge 2 HRs, upgrading to capture sleep and heart rate not previously possible with the Fitbit Zip. The distribution list and invitations are handled through Eventbrite.
