Regimen sanitatis / Magnum Mediolanensis .. : Mayno, de' Mayneri,

The earliest known drawing of sunspots John of Worcester chose to illustrate as well as to describe his witnessing the appearance of two black spheres against the sun. A mandorla with Christ seated, between two seraphs and two angels. In 1838 they were described as 'Saxon work, 11th century' - a barbarian curiosity and a suitable foil to later works which showed how Giotto emancipated art and set it on a route that was to lead to Raphael and his peers'.

The selection of scenes and their execution not only assists in petitions for forgiveness but offers examples on how to lead a life worthy of forgiveness, and its opposite. I am extremely indebted to Hilary Ely of the Cranston Library for her labor of love in sending me digital photos of innumerable pages from the manuscript so that I could study it.
