ANTIQUÉ PORCELAIN & BONE CHINA

The remaining Islamic and converted populations were expelled from Spain in 1496 and 1609 respectively, the latter involving a third of the population in the province of Valencia.

Hispano

I was then finally rewarded by being able to duplicate the lustre practically at will, however not always the same shade which is not always desirable but under reasonable control to be practical. . The secrets of the techniques for making high-quality wares were largely lost, and after took a personal interest a report was commissioned in 1785 to record the methods then being used, lest more was lost.

Hispano

Wares from and other Valencian towns were mainly for the Christian market, and exported very widely. Designs were typically arts and crafts: animals, galleons, stylized floral motifs and mythical beasts and these were transposed to chargers, bowls, vases and tiles.

ANTIQUÉ PORCELAIN & BONE CHINA

Many lustre colors were then later produced with this glaze in experimental form, and later, when finally under control, applied on tiles and pottery.

Hispanic Society of America

Earthenware, yellow and gold lustre glaze painted on each side with lion rampants and scroll pattern. These included Celtic, Arabian, Egyptian and Moresque designs.
