The essence of what has driven all this attention lies in the emergence of a broad recognition of the importance of the family in the life of the individuals within it and the society made up of families.

Family Systems Theory

Immigration policies, settlement programs and current human service practices with vulnerable immigrant and refugee families will also be discussed. For example, one family may have a warm and expressive personality, whereas another family may tend toward a cold, detached personality. Specific topic areas of consultation include: prevention of conduct disorder, aggression and violence; racial, ethnic and cultural influences on youth and families; racial socialization processes, racial identity development; resiliency and empowerment, academic achievement, practical and culturally relevant approaches to parenting; and intervention development and community dissemination in diverse cultural contexts.
