Frank Lloyd Wright's Cooke House, Started with a Letter

These designs were featured in the November, 1955 issue of House Beautiful, which Gordon devoted entirely to Wright and his wide-reaching body of work. The House Beautiful reproduces - in its entirety- a book designed by Frank Lloyd Wright and hand-printed at the tiny Auvergne Press in 1897, where only 90 copies of this exquisite artisan book were produced. In America, the Arts and Crafts movement rippled throughout the art world and found an advocate in publisher William Herman Winslow, who in 1896 established the tiny Auvergne Press in his Chicago-area home to produce exquisitely beautiful hand press editions of books espousing the Arts and Crafts aesthetic.
