WHERE TO STAY ON PEMBROKESHIRE COAST If you are planning on doing several of these day walks, and you intend on using public transport, St Davids is a great place to base yourself. Begin the walk at the National Trust Car Park at Marloes Sands and head anti-clockwise following the route on the map linked below. My water refill system with a filter and reusable bottle.

There is a range of stunning wildlife to see including RSPB bird nesting sites and seal breeding grounds. Throughout the length of the Trail small quays, lime kilns and warehouses, and sites like the brickworks at Porthgain, are reminders of a industrial tradition. The day-trippers, seemingly incapable of venturing more than a hundred metres from one of the best beaches in the world, quickly dissipated, and I could admire the spectacular rock formations in the cliffs, with only the occasional nodding rambler to pass me in the opposite direction.
