Augustine grass Carpet grass Zoysia grass It is important to understand that grasses grow best during different seasons, so get used to the idea now: your lawn won't look perfect every day of the year. The first thing to understand when looking for the grass that will best suit your lawn is knowing your soil.

Invasive to Avoid: Pampas Grass

Here are three of the best grass types for lawns in San Diego. Water conservation is the responsibility of every citizen, not just in areas with drought or low moisture conditions.

Native Grasses of the Pacific Coast and Northwest

Savannas are always found in warm or hot climates where the annual rainfall is from about 50. California native grasses play a unique and important role in providing cover, nesting materials, and additional food sources for beneficial, garden-friendly wildlife.

Stopping Invasive Grass from Taking Over Your Lawn

Overgrazing, plowing, and excess salts left behind by irrigation waters have harmed some steppes. This handsome species is a monocot and perennial grass like herb that is native to California.

7 California native grasses for your landscape project

Agriculture and Natural Resources, University of California. It has similar qualities to many invasive plants, crowding out native species and reproducing both vegetatively and by seed.
