Langdon, one of the Commissioners at Plymouth, and the Lord Treasurer's brother-in-law, is chosen burgess for Looe, and is now gone for London, and has promised to speak to my Lord about it also. Last Wednesday afternoon came into Portland Road a French man-of-war of 28 guns convoying several French and English ships, one belonging to Poole, another to Southampton, and others for London. Besides, I never had a penny for my troublesome voyage to Holland.
