Fusang, Or, The Discovery of America by Chinese Buddhist Priests in the Fifth Century

This is made plausible for several reasons.
This work has been selected by scholars as being culturally important, and is part of the knowledge base of civilization as we know it. Its collections include around 14 million books, along with substantial additional collections of manuscripts and historical items dating back as far as 300 BC.

Leland worked in journalism, travelled extensively, and became interested in folklore and folk linguistics, publishing books and articles on American and European languages and folk traditions. This work was reproduced from the original artifact, and remains as true to the original work as possible. After college, Leland went to Europe to continue his studies, first in Germany, at Heidelberg and Munich, and in 1848 at the Sorbonne in Paris.
