Kellor was also a founding member of the American Arbitration Association, which organization she served as first vice-president and chief executive for twenty-five years 1926 — 1952. Her work was particularly noted for the use of violent and colourful imagery, and she produced many self-portraits, and her style remained completely different to that of her husband. In the Guild Chapel adjoining the Grammar School at Stratford-upon-Avon is a tablet memorial to Sir Hugh Clopton, Knt.
