continuing connection to the land, waters and community. In 2001, The Center for Applied Linguistics discovered that most countries have mandatory foreign language requirements for children beginning at eight years old. Helping our students learn another language and interact across cultures is one of the best gifts we can give them for a bright future in our globalised world.

Schools and Community

The 60 to 70 parents who crowd the library here at Washington Elementary School each Thursday morning, chatting in Spanish and snacking on sweets donated by a local bakery, are the product of years of dogged relationship-building led by the veteran principal.

Community Language Program

Through this text, students learn about schools around the world and the challenges some communities face in sending their students to school and how they solve these challenges. College admissions officers also like the focus and drive of students who have invested in learning another language over several years or more.
