One day in 1979 when my grandfather was eighty-eight, he told me he wanted me to drive him to Fort Ann so he could show me something because he was afraid he wasn't going to live much longer; he took me up to a point on Battle Hill where he was sure the canon was buried he died about six months later! Some 300 people attended this function at their home at Rose Lawn. Lewis the Author of this volume is under great obligations for the labor he has taken in ggettinj; views and photographs of the mines. Its virtual completion seemed practically assured by the discovery of data existing in 1940 in the southeast part of England, by which it was hope to fill in most of the breaks in continuity in the, early Weller ancestry and complete the connection of the several branches of the Weller family.
