The first constitutional draft, originally proposed by the French socialists, had been approved in February 1946, and the constitution was finally adopted on 27 October after a public referendum.

FSI

The Constitution, to repeat, is a list of the powers that the people grant to the state, and makes clear that the right to make war is not among them. In the Constitution of Thailand 2007 the speaker is the King, though he declares that the people are sovereign.

But viewing it as a political act allows us to ask an additional question: In this constitution, just who is wresting what power from whom? Kuhn, Philip, Origins of the Modern Chinese State Stanford, 2002.

Comparative constitutional history

Additional materials were received from Professor Moore in 2000. It is the charter that founds and authorizes the various governmental institutions.
