Chris Hobbs has sent us a cutting from the Sheffield Daily Telegraph of Monday, 23rd February 1920 which we have transcribed and added to our Newspaper Archive. He put his furniture and farm stock up for sale and by 1 January 1859 it would appear that the house was tenanted by Charles Durham. Some concepts of in are similar to that of purgatory.

From the style of clothing and appearance of the people in the photographs, they are likely to date from between 1905 and the early 1920s, very probably pre-war.

Methodism

Unusual or especially perverse deeds, particularly when performed in public, are symptomatic of a demoniac. Other strands of Western Christianity see purgatory as a place, perhaps filled with fire. According to its representatives, most cases brought before it have conventional explanations, and actual exorcisms are quite rare; blessings, though, are sometimes given to people for psychological reasons.

Peter Oates asked for our help to find the grave of Thomas Biggin of Dore Fields who died in 1861 and is buried in Christ Church graveyard. This website is intended to introduce you to these people and the community's past and hopefully inspire you to look more closely into the history of our village. Likewise, let them not permit uncertain matters, or those that have the appearance of falsehood, to be brought out and discussed publicly.
