Well, I am the master of my domain, so I suppose I could, but I have always held that a five minute break makes those. After Kuomintang military victories in 1925 generated great interest in Shanxi for the Nationalist ideology, including , Yan allowed girls to enroll in middle school and college, where they promptly formed a women's association. They Zhou ruling house was only in power for a small part of their dynasty.

The goal of this student group was to organize a revolution that would lead to the creation of a strong and united China, similar to how had created a strong and united Germany.

Yu Jin

This move was not protested by Chiang due to his involvement in suppressing the forces of , who had marched up to northern from his base in support of Yan.

Yu Jin

By the time he was forced out of Shanxi by the Communists, the province was a major producer of coal, iron, chemicals, and munitions.
