We call on the newly elected leaders of Bosnia and Herzegovina to commit themselves to the full implementation of the Dayton Peace Accords, taking on greater responsibility for and ownership of the process. As in the 1940s, today's renewed focus on the state's role has been inspired by dramatic events in the global economy, which have fundamentally changed the environment in which states operate.

Yugoslavia: Fragmentation and Globalization

Whilst he was in favour of an international court with world-wide competence to judge war crimes and crimes against humanity, he suggested that the Assembly submit a proposal for instituting a court at European level, fearing that the procedure within the United Nations might take too long.

Hans Koechler

In principle, then, the EU's relations with the developing countries are governed by the same general political goals and guidelines as its relations with other countries, but it continues to take account of the special economic, social and cultural features of these relations and the structures that have evolved over the years, such as the links with the group of ACP countries, by complying with specific development policy rules. Although in many aspects different, the centralized economies of other communist-controlled European states did not rely on the free internal circulation of capital, commodities and labor; rather, they thrived by the political monopoly of the central party-state. When rebellions are fuelled by subversive groups with the aim of carrying out terrorist attacks, states have a duty, while complying with constitutional rules and the European Convention on Human Rights, to take appropriate precautions, including international police and judicial co-operation, in the interests of those immigrants who aspire to live in peace in their host country and who publicly distance themselves from the terrorist groups, with which, therefore, they should not be indiscriminately associated.

To Be or Not to Be: The OSCE in the 'New Europe'

We call upon the States participating in the negotiations on regional stability under the Accords to make use of the fresh impetus generated by the participation of the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia in the OSCE, with the aim of concluding their work by the agreed deadline. In February 2002, the annual high-level tripartite meeting of the United Nations, OSCE and the Council of Europe took place in Strasbourg, France, and was preceded by a target-oriented meeting on confidence-building measures in South-East Europe.
