

Common and aboriginal names of Western Australian plant species

Wildflower Society of Western Australia, Eastern Hills Branch - Flora of Australia

Description: -

- Federal aid to day care centers -- United States
- Child care services -- Law and legislation -- United States
- Latin language, Medieval and modern -- Dictionaries -- Australian.
- Latin language, Medieval and modern -- Dictionaries -- English.
- Australian languages -- Dictionaries -- Latin, Medieval and modern.
- English language -- Dictionaries -- Latin, Medieval and modern.
- Plants -- Australia -- Western Australia -- Nomenclature.
- Plant names, Popular -- Australian.
- Plant names, Popular -- Australia -- Western Australia. Common and aboriginal names of Western Australian plant species
- Common and aboriginal names of Western Australian plant species

Notes: Includes bibliographical references (p. [3]-[7]).

This edition was published in 1993

Filesize: 28.94 MB

Tags: #Australian #Native #Plants #Index

Search the Western Australian Flora

The trees are tall and not unlike a cherry tree, while yellowish pale green leaves are shaped like a narrow pear leaf. Uses: Aborigines boil and eat the shoots , 1988.

Western Australia

Until 1829, he lived at Percy Place Mekoorabon , the house of local settler George Hall, and then moved onto Manse Farm, which still stands on Punt Road at Pitt Town today. .

Aboriginal Translocations: The Intentional Propagation and Dispersal of Plants in Aboriginal Australia

Good also made a separate seed collection, which included B. Brown did not offer a common name when he published Dryandra floribunda in 1810, but later that year the translated it as many flowered dryandra.

9 Mind

For example, the starchy roots of were used in western Victoria to make a dough that was baked, and the leaves of the plant were used as a poultice applied to skin irritations and blisters. Oral tradition necessitated an economy of words.

All About the Western Australian Pitcher Plant

The most usual method of taking the brush possum was to extricate it from its haunt in a hollow tree.

Search the Western Australian Flora

Its seeds, toxic when raw, were prepared by roasting or soaking in water. It is in season in the months of April and May.

Related Books

- Man and woman manifesto - let the revolution begin
- Toten im Recht nach der Lehre und den Normen des orthodoxen morgenländischen Kirchenrechts und der g
- Polymers
- Parīkṣita - Kathā-kāvya
- Portrush regeneration initiative - a fitting response