Lochaber

If we are to get the services to a stage where they are not an embarrassment to us as a country, significant investment will be required. David Stewart The issue of advocacy has been highlighted. Are there issues with their ability to self-refer? Nothing is too big or too small, too detailed or too vague.

Lochaber, Skye & Wester Ross

I am interested in issues around the sex of the examiner. The modelling in the financial memorandum was based on the best available information at the time; that indicates an expected increase of around 10 per cent in demand for self-referrals.

West Highland and Islands Local Development Plan

I am talking about giving both information and training. Again, the self-referral sub-group is actively thinking about that. We are joined by Sandy Brindley, who is the chief executive of Rape Crisis Scotland; Anne Robertson Brown, who is the vice-chair of Angus violence against women partnership; Gwen Harrison, who is manager of Rape and Sexual Abuse Service Highland; and Jen Stewart, who is centre manager of the Rape and Sexual Abuse Centre Perth and Kinross.

What concerns have health boards raised about long-term funding and what action has the Scottish Government taken to support boards in that regard? If the incident is not reported after a set time the evidence will be destroyed. That is done with consent. It is also essential not just that the services are there and are developed, but that people know about them
