Cameroon the land of promise the land of opportunity the land where when there is a forward you think of back ward to build a perfect land so let rise to build our mother land.

How Culture Controls Communication

When eating in the family car, for example, a parent may not be able to demonstrate the loving and responsible role of provider in the same way, it could be harder for them to teach food manners while in motion and this setting may not invoke the same sense of a refuge from the public sphere or reminder of family unity. But while taking a totally hands-off approach can be blissful, it never hurts to know what you like or want to try , and actually ask for it. At the same time, many people admit to facing a multitude of barriers in putting this into practice.
